EXPLANATORY.

The order of arrangement adopted, seems to me more simple, clear, and natural than the complex system of notation and order usually adopted by most genealogists. Each generation is given separately, and all follow each other in the order of their succession; the running head-line over each page at once denoting the generation beneath.

The same order of successive individual primogeniture, is also followed. The descendants of the first in order, in each generation, open the next generation, and the descendants of the last in order, close it. This plan simplifies the whole, and affords an easy mode of tracing any line, either upward or downward.

Each name, when it first occurs in the table of births, has its fixed catalogue number in the margin; and when carried to the next generation for further history, carries with it this distinctive number, for identity and reference. To trace upward: take the name and number in the table of births; the name and number of the parent is seen at the head of this table; find this head number in the margin of the preceding generation; the name and number at the head, shows the grandparent; and so on, by repeating this alternate reference, through each generation, the entire line is shown upward to James of Boston, the first settler, and common ancestor of all. To trace downward, simply reverse the process.

The relation or degree of kinship between any two of the family, may be easily found by tracing both lines upward until they unite in a common ancestor, and then noting in a third column, the several degrees of kinship from that common ancestor downwards; arranging them with the highest numbers at the bottom, as in the following example. What is the degree of kinship between Frank A. Harris, No. 1066, and Ephraim W. Harris, 1195?

GEN. I.		JAMES OF BOSTON, COMMON ANCESTOR.
" II.	James, jr.,	No. 4,	and Asa,	No. 8.	Brothers.
" III.	Jonathan,	No. 16,	" Ephraim,	No. 24.	1st cousins.
" IV.	Joseph,	No. 38,	" Ephraim,	No. 64.	2d do.
" V.	Joseph, jr.,	No. 131,	" Dyer,	No. 165.	3d do.
" VI.	Albert,	No. 464,	" Ephraim,	No. 539.	4th do.
" VII.	Frank A.,	No. 1066,	" Ephraim W.,	No. 1195.	5th do.

And the lineage upward, of the following names, is found in the same manner to meet in Jonathan Harris No. 16, and they are all cousins in the 2d degree.

Albert Harris, 464,	s. of Joseph, 131,	s. of Joseph 38,	s. of)
Sam'l D. Harris, 254,	s. of Squire, 92,	s. of Jonathan 31,	s. of) Jonathan 16,
N. H. Morgan, 353,	s. of Sarah Harris, 106,	d. of Nathaniel 34,	s. of) Com. Ances.
2d Cousins.	1st Cousins.	Brothers.

These examples will, I trust, render the process perfectly intelligible to all; and the solution of similar problems in kinship may be a source of gratification and amusement, especially to the young.

The first date after the marginal number is the date of birth, and this being noted, the constant repetition of the word, born, is thus avoided. The general abbreviations are; b. for born; d. died; m. married; unm. unmarried; rem. removed; sett. settled; res. reside; s. son; dau. daughter; gr. and g. gr. grand, or great grand son or daughter, etc. Other abbreviations will explain themselves.

In some cases the names in the tables of births are abbreviated, and sometimes dates are also omitted, in order to condense into one line; but the full name and omitted dates will be found in the next generation, where the number is carried forward, and also in the index of names.

The portraits given are faithful copies from photographs. No. 394 bears the general features of his grandfather, Nathaniel Harris, No. 34, and is a very good representation, in contour of head and facial expression, of the more common type of our Harris family. Those of Nos. 353 and 455 are said to be more typical of the respective families whose names they bear. Never having seen but few of the families of the line of Asa, I am unable to say from the portrait of No. 1887 how far he is a typical representative, in feature, of that branch.

P R E F A C E .

No one, except those who have had experience in the matter, can have any adequate conception of the vast amount of labor, time, patience, or expense, or of the perplexing embarrassments; involved in preparing works of this character; especially if that thorough investigation and research is made, which is requisite for a full and accurate catalogue of names, with dates of births, marriages, deaths, and other events in detail, reliably exact, and generally complete in the record. And a genealogy defective in these dates and details, fails in its most essential purpose.

This work was commenced nearly thirty-five years ago; though not then with any design of publication. There was a vague family tradition that the first of our American ancestors was a certain Lieut. James Harris of N. London, Conn., of some note in his day, and I had a curiosity to test this tradition. It soon appeared that this James, was one of the nine children of Gabriel of N. L., who was the son of Walter Harris [No. 1 of the Appendix], who came over in 1632, in the ship "William and Francis," and settled in Weymouth, Mass., but in 1652 removed to N. London. After several years labor and research in gathering quite an array of the descendants of this Walter, with many historical and personal notes, several newly-discovered circumstances gave rise to a grave doubt whether this James the son of Gabriel, and our Lieut. James, were identical; and further investigation fully established the fact that they were not; and that the former died in early youth—thus leaving the origin and antecedents of Lieut. James entirely unknown, with no clue to their discovery, and rendering nearly the whole mass of my gathered material useless for my purpose. The work was then substantially suspended, and the chief attention of my spare time was more especially occupied in tracing out the lineage and ancestry of the "Morgan Family," to which I belong, and which I have since published. I, however, continued to collect, from time to time, such facts and data as I could, pertaining to the history and family of Lieut. James, and among others, that he was one of the sons of a certain James Harris of Boston, who with his wife Sarah, had the births of eleven children there recorded, but about whom nothing further was known. [See p. 18.]

Thus far, the subject had been pursued merely for my own gratification. Meantime my health became so broken by an affliction of spasmodic asthma, of the most intensely distressing type, that for twenty years, and until quite lately, I have rarely been able to prosecute any pursuit, physical or mental; but about three years ago there came welcome signs of a modification and relief, and I instinctively turned my attention again to this subject, as a sort of mental absorbent, to draw my thoughts away from myself.

This renewed pursuit was also strongly seconded by my excellent friend and kinsman, Hon. J. N. Harris of N. L., No. 394, who has ever manifested a lively interest in these researches, and generously offered to share in the expense; and who appealed to me under the consideration that unless my gatherings were now, and by myself, completed and published, in form for preservation, they never would be, and so the whole history of the family would be for ever lost. This consideration had great force, and since then, my whole attention and best efforts have been devoted to the task, and with what success, this volume which I now submit to the family, will show. I wish it were more perfect in catalogue and dates, but these defects have been rendered inevitable by the neglect and reticence of others. Had my letters and reiterated appeals for family records, been responded to with any fair degree of attention, I should have presented a more perfect work, and with less than half the labor.

Fully impressed with the importance of accuracy in detail, I have tried faithfully to attain it; but in a work like this, so abounding in names and dates, transcribed and re-transcribed, and often by unskilled hands, it would be indeed strange if some errors had not crept in. And, moreover, the records themselves, whether public, or the private family Bible, though purporting verity, are frequently faulty. I have known the family record, the town record, and the gravestone, each to give a different date of the same event, neither of which was correct. I have seen a registry in a family Bible, made by a careful and intelligent mother, of her own children, wherein three single births are recorded as occurring within a period of five months, and although the record had so stood for many years, no one of the family had discovered the anachronism. Some of the dates herein given, will be found to differ from those sent, but this may not imply error; many have been corrected by better evidence, either at hand or elsewhere obtained; or by collateral circumstances.

I have taken the liberty also, to correct the orthography of many names sent me; but where the family has persisted in some new form, I have followed the spelling, however peculiar. Pet names have been a pest to me: such as Winny, for Edwin; Nielly, for Daniel; Retta, for Margaret; Lina, for Caroline, and even Donny, for plain, honest John, etc., etc., causing me much correspondence to ascertain the real names, and probably some of these spurious names are still uncorrected. All genealogies are more or less vitiated and corrupted, by these future mischief-breeding, pet aliases.

The work will be found more full and complete in dates of births, marriages, deaths, and other details, than most similar works; and to perfect these, has been a great additional labor. Many of the family, not fully appreciating the importance of these details, have not given them in the records sent, notwithstanding the explicit requests in my letters and circulars; and in very many instances have reported names merely, omitting all dates; and it has been only by subsequent and oft-repeated explicit solicitations, that I have been able, at last, to obtain them.

It was not the original purpose to embrace in this catalogue, the descendants of females, whose names were changed by marriage, beyond their children, or at most their grandchildren; but after the work was brought down to the living generations, and it became necessary to obtain the further records by a wide correspondence, it soon became evident, that it was upon the females of the family that I had mainly to depend. As a general rule, the fathers and brothers, of the agnatic lines, were not only ignorant of, but indifferent to their pedigree and kinship, while the mothers and daughters were better informed in the matter, and much more interested. And as far the greater portion of the later records has been gathered and sent me by the zealous labors of these very mothers and daughters, it has seemed to me a most ungracious return, to shut their own offspring out of the family group; and the more especially so, when the real fact is considered, that they inherit just as truly, and just as much, of the Harris blood, as do any of the agnatic lines, still bearing the Harris name.

There is a popular fallacy about this matter of consanguinity, or blood relationship. Because the male line alone transmits the name, it has come to be considered that the male line, more especially transmits the blood. But this is an entire mistake; and is not only against all natural law, but also against the common law of the land regarding the title of blood relation to the heirship of estates. The male line alone perpetuates the mere family name, but both the male and female lines, alike, and in equal degree, perpetuate the blood, whatever names they or their descendants, to the remotest generation, may chance to bear. They are equal heirs in blood, and equal heirs in law.

The family as a whole, though not an illustrious one, shows a respectable and honorable record. But few of its members have been much distinguished in literature, art, science, or commerce. They are generally agriculturists and artisans, and of that class and rank which forms the stable and solid body of yeomanry of the land, and upon which the character, strength, and perpetuity of its free institutions, mainly rest.

As among themselves, there is a too evident tendency to family segregation; too loose holding of the ties of kindred; too little cherishing of that natural bond of fraternal sentiment, which is one of the best and holiest instincts of humanity. The man who has no sympathy of kinship, and who cares not "to whom related or by whom begot," whatever other human attributes he may boast, is in this respect closely allied to the brutes, and in so far, is degraded to their condition. I note this with reluctance, but the indifference which, especially in some particular branches, has too often met this effort to restore the lost memorials of our dead, and to unite and brighten the scattered links in the chain of our living, constrains me to give utterance to a very great and unpleasant surprise.

But there is another and a brighter side to this picture. Many, very many, have responded most cordially and promptly, to the object and spirit of the work, and by their ready and zealous co-operation, have rendered not only valuable and essential aid, but have encouraged me and cheered me on in my labor; for which, both for myself, and in behalf of the whole clan, my most grateful thanks are due.

And there has been another source of high gratification and pleasure. I had heard much in my young days, now long ago, from my honored grandfather Nathaniel Harris, and his children, of his, and their, earlier relatives, who had become widely scattered; and as I have stood in the focal light of this wide correspondence, gathering in the rays which have come to me from every quarter, and have traced out, one after another, the living descendants of these old relatives, long since gone from earth, it has awakened a flood of old memories, and has seemed to create a reunion, in sympathy and spirit—a fraternal communion with the whole clan, living and dead. And if this grouping together of these descendants, and giving the “name and local habitation” of each of the living ones, shall awaken kindred emotions, and lead to a more general inter-family communion and correspondence, I shall have a special pride and pleasure in sending the work down to our posterity, associated with my name.

It is not strange that many persons should wonder at so great an expenditure of time, labor, and money, in dry and tedious researches of this character. It is sometimes a wonder to myself. The impulse springs perhaps more from the instincts, than the reason, but whatever may be its source, it is potential in its influence, sometimes becoming almost a passion; and were it not for this, but few of the many valuable family genealogies of which the past few years have been so prolific, would ever have seen the light.

There are, however, valid reasons in favor of such labors; for, aside from the gratification they afford to many, who desire to know about their ancestry, and to see the grouping together of their kindred; aside from the value which they may hereafter have, in furnishing and preserving evidence of heirship, manifold their cost; aside from their value to the genealogist, the antiquarian, and the general public, there are other, and still higher views of their value. If it was an honor to a Roman, to be able to boast a pedigree back to the founders of that brilliant empire,—if it ennobled and inspired the ancient Greek, if he could make the same proud boast,—if it be to-day, regarded as a high badge of renown, to an English subject, if he can show a lineage back to the days of the Conqueror William, and his followers,—in short, if this descent from the founders of Empire, has always, and everywhere, been held in the highest renown, how much more, in the days to come, will it be counted an honor, to be ranked among those who have descended from the first founders of this new, but already great and illustrious Republic, on this new continent, of a newly-discovered WORLD! And unless this evidence is now, or soon, sought out and preserved, it never can be. The inexorable tooth of time is fast demolishing the musty and decaying records, and in a few brief years no trace of their story will be left. I have already put upon record this evidence, in regard to the pedigree of my own paternal line of ancestry, in the genealogy of the "Morgan Family," published in 1869; and I now herein record the like evidence, in my maternal line, in this souvenir of the Harris family. And although they both result, as I clearly fore-saw they must, in some pecuniary loss to myself, yet I submit to the judgment of a practical world, whether it is not wiser, and better, to leave behind, the fruits of such a labor, than the wealth of a Ctesias, with a costly monument, but worthless memory, for a brood of ungrateful and dissolute heirs to wrangle over, and squander, in lives of riot and dissipation. And this I have been enabled to do, in the spare intervals of, and without detriment to the more pressing duties of, an otherwise active and busy life.

There is a deep significance and a profound philosophy in that Divine economy, enjoined upon the ancient Israelites—that chosen people—to preserve their ancient pedigrees, and to hold in sacred veneration the memory of their forefathers.

This striking feature is a study worthy of all who, under Providence, are entrusted with the preservation and perpetuity of nations and of peoples. Not only every family, but every tribe of Israel, was required to preserve sacredly its lineage and pedigree; and the whole nation was trained to consider itself a fraternity of "kindred according to the flesh;" bound together by the ties of blood and brotherhood, and made one in sympathy, one in hope, and one in destiny. They were all, alike, and everywhere, the children of Abraham—not merely in name, but verily his seed—and the links and ligaments of this relation were kept sacred and bright, in every household, and in every tribe.

And so it was, that when the child Jesus was born of this race, though of a humble and obscure family, Matthew was able, at once, to give his paternal pedigree, as the son of Joseph, back through forty-two generations to Abraham.—Matt., chap. i.

And so it was, that the more learned and scholarly Luke, could give the record of his maternal pedigree, as the son of Mary, away back through seventy-six generations to Adam.—Luke, chap. iii.

And so it is, that the power of this sentiment of family relation,—this fraternal bond,—has held this people together, amid all their trials, persecutions, captivities, banishments, and dispersions, and is holding them together to-day, though scattered over the whole world, in the unity of one people—A PEOPLE WITHOUT A COUNTRY!—A NATION WITHOUT A HOME!—but still indissoluble; and all waiting for the restoration of Israel, and the reëstablishment of the reign of the ancient House of David.

COAT ARMOR, ORIGIN OF NAME, ETC.

Almost every family in our land, especially of New England stock, boasts its traditional "Coat of Arms." Our Harris family has one, a copy of which is here represented; and while I feel in courtesy called upon by many enquiries from various sources, about our family "coat of arms," to make some response to these enquiries, I take, personally, no great interest in this matter, and place but little reliance upon the authenticity of most of these traditional family emblems.

Coats of arms were early in use, both as a sign or signet of personal identity, and also as a badge of honor and distinction. The use of such device was more generally granted to some particular individual, in token of some meritorious act or conduct on his part; and the use, in such case, was limited to him personally, and not transmissible to his descendants. It was also sometimes granted as a general badge of distinction and honor; and in such cases, often made hereditary in the male line of the name, like other claims by heirship. Very few American families, therefore, can establish any proper claim to the use of coat armor. In order to do this, they must be able to show, first, that the original grant for its use was made hereditary in the family; and secondly, must be able to prove their own pedigree, in a direct line, up to the original grantee.

These, as I understand the matter, are the general principles upon which the special claim to use coat armor must be founded. Our family claim to the coat of arms here represented, rests, therefore, upon just as good a foundation of traditional evidence, as does that of most others, and may be as genuine as the best of them; as the following will show:

I find in Burke's Encyclopedia of English Heraldry, a description of thirty-four different coats of arms, which have been granted, at various times, to as many different persons of the Harris name; ten of which bear upon the shield or escutcheon, the device of the hedge-hog, in some form, either as a principal or inferior device; and among the thirty-four there is one very similar to our traditional one, viz.:

"HARRIS—Ar.—a lion, rampant, Gu.—over all a chevron Or."—which means, in common language: on a shield of silver (argent)—a lion, red, (gules)—erect on hind legs, (rampant), bearing a chevron, gold (Or.)

The description attached to ours is as follows:

"HARRIS.—Ar.—a lion, rampant, Sa.—over all a chevron, Ermine.—Crest, a falcon, with wings expanded, Or."—which means; on a shield, of silver (argent) a lion, rampant, black (sable)—bearing a chevron, ermine (white with black spots). Crest, a falcon, gold—(Or).

It will be seen that the devices and their arrangement, on both of the above escutcheons, are exactly alike, and differ only in emblazonry, or color. The one in Burke has no crest, but the crest was never part of the escutcheon proper, and only an appendage. The colors, also, were sometimes varied; as a matter of individual taste merely.

Berry, in his Encyclopedia Heraldica, gives a list of twenty-five Harris coats of arms, of which seven bear, in some form, the sign of the hedge-hog, and one similar to ours as described by Burke.

Edmundson, in his "Body of Heraldry," gives a list of seventeen Harris coats, five of which show the hedge-hog device, and one like ours, as in Burke, and another nearly like it.

The following interesting comments upon this subject, are extracts from a letter kindly sent me in 1850 by an esteemed friend, now deceased,* and are far more worthy of a place here than anything I can offer.

EXTRACT.—“There are many different coats of arms, borne by persons of our name in England. The most common are those in which hedge-hogs (porcupines) are introduced. This kind of coat is really a pun upon our name, which varied much in its orthography, as Heriz, Herris, Herries, Harris, Harries, etc. The language of Heraldry is Norman French, introduced into England by the Conqueror William, and his followers. Hérisson, is French for hedge-hog, and this cognizance was granted in allusion to the family name, which to Norman ears, has nearly the same sound. Hence some have inferred that Harris was a Norman French name. I believe it, however, to be pure English, or rather Welch. The final s, is the sign or termination of the possessive case; so that Harris, signifies of Harry; or of the family of Harry. In the same way Adam has, in the possessive, become Adams; Jacob has become Jacobs; John has become Johns, or Jones, etc. Thus, too, in the Welch form, derived from ap, signifying son, Harry becomes ap Harry, i. e. of Harry, or Harry’s; so that Parris is the son of Harris. My ingenious friend, the Rev. William Jenks, D. D., who is of the Providence Harris lineage, of Welch descent, first called my attention to the above derivation, and assures me that our name is really old English, or Welch. The name was common in South Wales, and there is a little town there by the name of Harriston, near Haverford West, from whence Owen Harris of Boston probably emigrated, and where, as appears by his will, he left relatives. Mr. Kraitsir says, that Harry and Harris come from Henry, and the latter is Norman, having the same origin as Heinrich and Hainrich, that is, rich in home or household possessions. This is doubtless the derivation of Henry. Is it that of Harry also? Does not the latter come from some other root? Hearra, Anglo-Saxon, signifies a lord or master. Herr, in German, is Sir, or Lord; Herra, Heri, and Harri, in Icelandic, signify a king; Rhi, Welch, “dominicus baro nobiles;” A-Rhi, Gaelic,—Sire; Heras, Latin, master of a family. From one of these, or from some cognate root, I should more hopefully seek to derive the name of Harry or Harris."

* Doctor Thaddeus William Harris, the late widely known, learned, and accomplished librarian of Cambridge College, whose singular line of descent is given in the Appendix to this volume, Nos. 34 to 40, inclusive.

Lower, on English family names, the leading and most able authority, says:

"HARRIS comes from Henry, through Harry and Harrison.

HENRY—a personal name of Norman origin, which has given birth, in a modified form, to many surnames; including Harry, Harrison (Harry's son), Henri'son, Henson, Herries, Harris, etc., and in the Welch, ap. Henry (of Henry, in the possessive), ap Harris—'Parris—'Parry; in the Scotch, Fitz Henry, Fitz Harris (of Henry, etc., in the possessive).

Thus, as Henry has given names to the most numerous group of English monarchs, so it has also furnished surnames for a great number of English families."

I close with reproducing here the following from the preface to my Genealogy of the Morgañ Family:

A genealogy of dry names and dates can have but little interest to the general reader. It is said that when Doct. Noah Webster had got his first American Dictionary into print, he sent a copy to an old friend, not expecting a very critical examination. In due time his friend acknowledged the compliment, with the remark that the book seemed to abound in good words enough, but that he could not get the run of the story. The same criticism may be applied to volumes of this kind; and yet a writer in the N. Y. Evangelist, eloquently says:

"We were looking carelessly over a genealogy of the Minot family, in the second number of the New England Genealogical Register, when suddenly our eyes were suffused with tears, as they rested on the following sentence, in the catalogue of the children of Capt. John Minot, who died in Dorchester, 1669.

"MARTHA, b. 22 Sept., 1657, d. single, 23 Nov., 1678, age 21. She was engaged to be married, but d. unmarried, leaving a will in which she directed that at her funeral, her betrothed husband, 'John Morgan, jun., be all over in mourning, and follow next after me.'

"What a history is there in these few words about Martha Minot, who lived two centuries ago! The mind runs back in a moment to those times when almost all New England was a wilderness; to those days of the old Indian wars, when no man could be a captain without being a man of some rank and consequence. Just after the close of King Philip's war, when the settlements of New England were all in peace, Capt. John Minot's daughter Martha, twenty-one years of age, and having come into possession of her share of the estate of her father, had plighted her troth to one she loved and expected to marry, when disease fastened upon her young frame and would not be repelled. In the chill November air, when she faded like a leaf. And at her burial there followed—nearer than brother or sister—nearest of all to the hearse—the one, whom of all others she most loved; from whom to part had been to her more painful than the death-pang; and who had been in her thoughts till ‘the love light in her eye,’ was extinguished in death. That single item in her funeral directions, that ‘John Morgan, jun., be all over in mourning and follow next after me,’ tells the whole story.”

Nothing, at first sight, seems less interesting, or less instructive, than a genealogical table—a mere register of names and dates. But such a passage as that which is here quoted; so picturesque, so suggestive, so touching, so dramatic—when it occurs in the midst of these dry records, throws out an electric light at every link in the chain of the generations. Each of these names, in the table, is the memorial, perhaps the only memorial, of a human heart that once lived and died—a heart that kept its steady pulsations through some certain period of time, and then ceased to beat, and mouldered into dust. Each of these names is the memorial of an individual human life, that had its joys and sorrows; its cares and burdens; its affections and hopes; its conflicts and achievements; its opportunities, wasted or improved, and its hour of death. Each of these dates of “birth,” “marriage,” “death!” Oh! how significant! What a day, was each of these, to some human family, or to some circle of loving, human hearts.

JAMES HARRIS OF BOSTON,

And His Descendants.

“Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations; ask thy father and he will shew thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee.”—Deut. xxxii, 7.

“The man who feels no sentiment of veneration for the memory of his forefathers; who has no natural regard for his ancestors or his kindred, is himself unworthy of kindred regard or remembrance.”—Daniel Webster.

GENERATION I.

1. James Harris of Boston, Mass.,

Born about 1640, married Sarah Denison of Boston, in 1666. His place of nativity, parentage, and time of advent into this country, I have been unable to ascertain. He and his wife Sarah have the births of eleven children recorded in Boston. There is, in fact, a twelfth child recorded, by the name of James, without date of birth, his eldest son James being then living; and it has been conjectured that this second James was the son of a second wife, to whose children it was sometimes the custom of that day to give the duplicate name of an elder half brother or sister; but this conjecture is exploded by the fact that I have recently discovered in the early Probate records of New London, Conn., that Sarah, the first and only wife of James of Boston, outlived her husband, and was made executrix of his last will, dated at N. London, 4 June, 1714, and proved in Probate there 13 Sept., 1715, in which he bequeathed to her his whole estate during her natural life. The Boston record of this twelfth child is therefore a manifest clerical error, made by a second entry of the first James. All of these eleven children, except the last three, and Margaret, who d. an infant, were baptized in the “OLD SOUTH MEETING HOUSE” of Boston, in 1683.

The accidental discovery, by me, of this will in the old Probate files of N. London, within the past year, was indeed a very great and most agreeable surprise; for it had long been an unsolvable problem among the leading genealogists of New England to discover what ever became of this Boston Jas. Harris, no trace of him being found anywhere after the record of the births of his children; and in the solution of this problem I had myself specially labored for more than thirty years. I have, therefore, great pleasure in clearing up this mystery by publishing here the following will:

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF JAMES HARRIS.

From the best evidence I can now find, it appears that our Boston ancestor and his wife Sarah came to N. London from Boston about 1690, with all three of his sons, James, Asa, and Ephraim, all minors, the eldest about 17 years of age, and at least two or more of his daughters; but where he resided there, or what was his occupation, if any, while there, I have not been able to discover, though it is probable that he was by trade a weaver. The Boston record, referred to, shows the dates of birth of the children as follows:

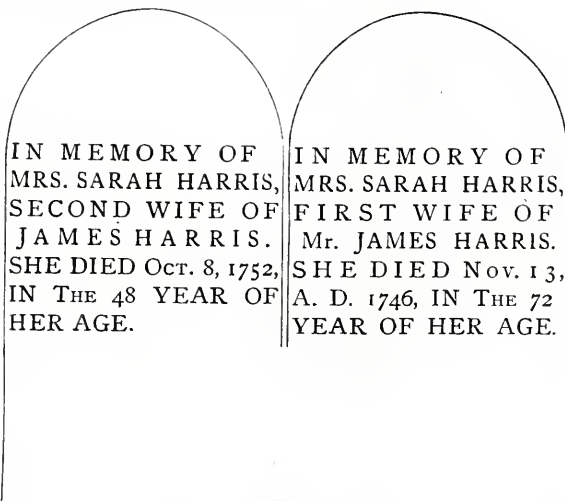

CHILDREN.

2. Sarah, 2 Mch., 1668. Nothing further known.
3. Deborah, July, 1670. Nothing known further.
4. James, 4 April, 1673, m. 1st, Sarah Rogers, 2d, wid. Sarah Jackson (née Harris).
5. Margaret, 16 Jan., 1675, died an infant.
6. Mary, 3 Feb., 1677, died aged 6 years.
7. Elizabeth, June, 1678, m. Wm. Rogers, N. L., 28 Aug., 1713.
8. Asa, 10 Nov., 1680, m. Elizabeth Rogers, N. L., 17 Mch., 1709.
9. Hannah, 22 Apl., 1682, prob'ly came to N. L. with her parents.
10. Ephraim, May, 1684, died an infant.
11. Mary again, June, 1686, prob. came to N. L. with her parents.
12. Ephraim again, 11 July, 1688, died about 1710, unmarried.

GENERATION II.

"When they were but a few men in number; yea, very few, and strangers in the land."—Ps. cv, 12.

Lieut. James Harris, 4, of New London,
Born in Boston, Mass., 4 Apl., 1673, eldest son of James, mar. in 1696, Sarah, dau. of Samuel Rogers of N. London. She was born 1676, and died 13 Nov., 1748, in the 72d year of her age, the mother of all his nine children. He next m., in 1750, when 77 years old, wid. Sarah Jackson (née Harris), dau. of Lieut. Joseph Harris of N. London, who was born 1st Jan., 1705, and died 8 Oct., 1752, in the 48th year of her age. He died 10 Feb., 1757, aged 84, nearly, and he and both his wives, one on each side, were buried together in ancient Mohegan, about a mile or more southeasterly from the old meeting house in Montville, a double slate stone, of the old style, still marking the spot, and bearing the following inscription:

The space underneath was left by him for an inscription to his own memory, but his youngest son, Lebbeus, in whose family he died, and who settled his estate, removed soon after to Nova Scotia, and the inscription in memory of this worthy old patriarch remains still unwritten.

In 1698, he removed from N. London to Mohegan, and settled upon a tract of land granted by Owaneco, the Mohegan Sachem, to his wife Sarah, adjoining lands of her father, Samuel Rogers, who had already settled there. His wife Sarah was an especial friend and favorite of Owaneco, and herself and her husband soon became the recipients of large grants of land from that Sachem. While at N. London he styled himself "Jas. Harris, weaver;" but after his removal to Mohegan, he drops that appellation and substitutes that of "husbandman." He might well have added that of "landholder" also.

The general range of hunting grounds over which the claims of the Mohegan tribe at this period extended, covered nearly the whole of the colony lying east of the Conn. River; but the lands which were under the more immediate occupancy of the tribe were mostly comprised within the general limits of the present County of N. London, and their council fires and the seat of their Sachems were at Mohegan, now the town of Montville. The first grant of any of these lands, north of the settlement of N. London, was made by the old Sachem Uncas, father of Owaneco, in 1658, to Richard Haughton and James Rogers, the grandfather of Sarah, the wife of James Harris; and consisted of valuable tracts near the river Thames at places called Massapeag and Pamachaug, below present Norwich. The first grant to the settlers at Norwich was made by Uncas the year following.

The first white settler upon these lands was Samuel Rogers, the father of our Sarah, in about 1671. His good friend Uncas had persuaded him to settle in his neighborhood, and as an inducement, had given him a valuable tract of land upon "Oxoboxa Brook," and had further promised, in case of inroads by prowling bands of Narragansetts, a troublesome tribe of Indians lying on the east, that he would rally at once with his warriors for his protection.

Rogers built a house of hewn plank upon this land, surrounded it with a stockade, and mounted a small cannon in front, the firing of which was to be the signal of alarm. Soon after, the boom of this gun was heard echoing through the forest, and in a few minutes Uncas, with his grim warriors, came rushing to the rescue of his friends. Rogers, to palliate the experimental trick, had prepared a feast for their reception; but the delighted warriors relished the cunning artifice, so in keeping with their own notions of strategy, as keenly as they did the banquet.

Uncas died in 1684, and Owaneco, his eldest son and successor as Sachem, died in 1715, and was succeeded by his son, Cezar Uncas. Between all these Sachems and the Rogers family there had ever existed a strong and intimate personal friendship; and in this friendly relation Jas. Harris and his wife Sarah warmly participated; Jas. himself becoming an especial favorite with the whole tribe. Indeed, this cordial relation between the Mohegan tribe and Jas. Harris and his descendants has been perpetuated down to the present century. I have often, when a boy, heard my grandfather, Nathaniel Harris, relate instances of this friendship, and have seen many of the sad remnants of this tribe on their frequent and friendly visits to his old homestead in Salem, where they always found a welcome. My honored mother, in her early childhood, had acquired so considerable a knowledge of their dialect as to be able to converse with them, to a fair extent, in their own language.

Owaneco and his successors were lavish in their grants of land to James and Sarah Harris, and they soon became large landholders. Grants and transfers of land are found on record all over ancient Mohegan, from N. London as far northerly as Norwich and Colchester; sometimes in the name of his wife, "Sarah Harris, by the consent of her husband, Jas. Harris;" sometimes by "James Harris, with the consent of his wife, Sarah;" and sometimes jointly by both. These joint deeds are found as late as 1725, or later, but afterwards all his deeds and transfers were made in his own name.

Grants of land had also been made by Uncas and the succeeding Mohegan Sachems, with a lavish hand, to other parties. These lands had but little or no value in the minds of these rude sons of the forest, except as hunting and fishing grounds, and as their use for these purposes were generally reserved to the tribe in their deeds, they were quite as ready to sell in exchange for a few glittering baubles, knives, hatchets, or a few pieces of silver coin, as the whites were to buy. They thought it a cunning bargain to obtain these coveted articles by merely making their mark upon one of these "paper gifts," as they called them. Of the real character and contents of these "paper gifts," their extent and boundaries, they could, of course, know nothing, only as they were explained to them by the interested and avaricious purchaser; and this combination of ignorance and cunning on the part of the Sachems, and of avarice and cupidity on the part of the whites, produced its inevitable fruits. The boundaries of different grants were found constantly overlapping each other; the same tracts were often granted to different parties by the same Sachem, or by rival Sachems and chiefs claiming title, until an inextricable confusion and conflict of title ensued, which involved not only the parties, but the colonial government itself, in a bitter controversy, lasting for more than seventy years; during which the power of the British Crown was several times invoked to interpose by the appointment of commissioners, and several commissions were appointed to hear and determine the controversy, but without avail.

And when it is remembered that the Mohegan territory extended in fact over the whole of N. London Co., and over the southern two-thirds of the counties of Windham and Tolland, embracing some 8,000 square miles of territory, over most of which Uncas and his successors had strewn these "paper gifts" in the same confusion of title and boundaries, the problem to be solved by these commissioners can be easily seen to have been a vast as well as perplexing one.

When Queen Ann's commissioners sat at Stonington in 1705, Capt. John Prentice testified that he had surveyed about 3,000 acres of Indian grants between N. London and Norwich, to Samuel Rogers, Samuel Rogers jr., James Harris, and fifteen others of less note, and that thirteen persons had then settled upon them. Land speculation became rife in this wild territory at this period, and Owaneco scattered his "paper gifts" like autumn leaves to all his greedy friends; but in 1710, May 10th, that Sachem made a conveyance of much greater note and moment than any prior grant. By a single mark of his pen he passed in a sweeping general deed to four persons, viz., John Livingston, Robert Denison, Samuel Rogers, jr., and James Harris, all the Mohegan lands between N. London and Norwich which he had not before alienated, comprising many thousand acres; reserving to himself and his tribe only a small portion for their own rude culture and occupation in the eastern part of Montville. The price paid was only fifty pounds.

In all these controversies and hearings before the several commissions of the Colony and the commissions of the Crown, Jas. Harris and the Rogerses bore a conspicuous part; the former especially appearing as an active manager, both for himself and for his dusky Mohegan friends. At one time he presented to the General Court, bills of his expenses during a single hearing, amounting to over £193, as taxed by the commissioners; among them a bill of £10 13s. 7d., "for feasting the Indians at their meeting for revocation;" and another of £8 3s. 10d., "for expenses while remaining among the Mohegans and keeping them in good humor." The General Court, however, refused to allow only £100 of the amount.

Early in the controversy, even before 1700, the General Court at Hartford had seen that this conflict of title, extending so widely over the eastern section of the Colony, would throw its blighting influence over the whole domain and impede its settlement and prosperity, unless some measure of relief could be devised; and they wisely adopted the policy of cutting all knots which could not be untied. That policy was the foreshadowing of the modern doctrine of "Squatter Sovereignty," and they proceeded to apply it.

Land patents for whole townships were granted by the General Court, from time to time, to the actual settlers within their respective limits, containing provisions for an allotment to each, of a fair proportion of land for his own culture, and paying little or no regard to any Indian grant that stood in the way. This policy, in a few years, practically swept away most of the large Indian land grants held by the great land-holders and speculators, and in the end put this long and angry controversy for ever at rest.

The large and numerous land transactions of our old ancestor, James, involved him not only in the various hearings before the commissioners, as already related, but also in a long series of lawsuits before the courts of the Colony, lasting for thirty years. The court records at Hartford show him as a constant litigant there with different parties from the time of his settlement at Mohegan, in 1698 to 1730, or later.

It is apparent that these lawsuits and the 'public squatter sovereignty' policy, had together resulted in the end, in sweeping away most of his broad acres, and circumscribing his boundaries within very materially diminished limits. In fact, some portions of the very lands he had purchased from Owaneco, and which he had never alienated, he afterwards repurchased at a pretty round sum. The following abstract from Montville land records is not only interesting in relation to this subject, but is also curious as showing the character and kind of property which was sometimes conveyed by such instruments in those days.

ABSTRACT OF DEED OF MAJOR JOHN MERRITT OF N. LONDON, CONN., TO LIEUT. JAS. HARRIS OF COLCHESTER, DATED 20 AUG., A. D. 1726;

Consideration £5,000; conveying all his lands, "situated within the towns of New London, Norwich, & Colchester, together & undivided between the said Merritt & Mrs. Mercy Raymond; being one-half of all lands held in joint tenancy with s^d Mercy Raymond; consisting of a farm at Massapeag, containing by estimation 400 acres; also the Great Farm on which the said John Merritt & Mercy Raymond now live" * * * * (lying on both sides of the highway leading over Raymond Hill in Montville), "containing 1,800 acres; also a farm lying near the line between Norwich & Colchester" * * * *; "including all Indian Purchases, Court Grants, &c., within the limits of the three towns aforesaid; together with my negro man called Cesar; my negro boy called Joe; my negro woman Rose; negro man Samson; negro man Bussoe; negro man Sharper; negro woman called Sylvia, & her child; my negro boy Peleg; & negro boy Andrew; also all my stock of neat cattle, horses, goats, sheep & swine." * *

Executed before Michael Tainter of Col., Justice of Peace, Peter Pratt and Pelatiah Bliss, witnesses.

Two of the above personal chattels, Samson and Rose, were re-sold to Major Merritt, and were included in the following transfer by Jas. Harris to Major Merritt, dated 20 Feb., 1729, of "all his right to certain negro slaves, viz., one negro man named Samson; one Indian boy named George; 1 negro woman named Rose; & 1 negro woman named Phillis."—NORWICH LAND REC., VOL. VI., P. 129.

It is noticeable that one of these negro slaves is an Indian boy named George. Now, it has been denied by New England historians that our Puritan ancestors ever reduced any of the Indian race to a state of domestic slavery, except a few captives taken in war by the first settlers of Massachusetts, and sent to the West Indies. But Jas. Harris was a Puritan of the old stamp;

a church-member, and a God-fearing and God-serving man in his day; and moreover, a special friend and favorite of the Indians; and there are too many instances like the above, found in our early land records and other documents, to leave room for such denial, though the custom was not common.

In 1739, Feb. 14, he gave the following deed to his sons Jonathan and Lebbeus Harris, which embraced a portion of the land bought of Merritt at Massapeag and Colchester.

To all people to whom these Presents shall come, greeting: Know ye that I, James Harris, of New London, in the County of New London, in the Colony of Connecticut, for and in consideration of the sum of Four Thousand Pounds good and current money, to me in hand paid by Jonathan Harris of Colchester, in the County of Hartford, in the Colony of Connecticut, and Libeus Harris of New London, in the County of New London, and Colony aforesaid, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge, and do give, grant, bargain, sell, alien, enfeoff, Convey and confirm unto the said Jonathan Harris, Libeus Harris, their Heirs and assigns, the several tracts or parcels of Land following, viz., one certain tract lying to the Northward of and adjoining to Massapeag, with a mansion House standing, containing by estimation one hundred acres, be the same more or less, bounded and described as per the Records thereof may at large appear. Also one tract of land commonly called Baker's Farm, with all land adjoining thereunto, which I purchased of Peter Wickwire, Jonathan Wickwire, and George Richards, with the building thereon, Containing by estimation Two hundred and fifty acres, be the same more or less, and is bounded and described as the Records thereof may appear, an also one Tract of land which I purchased of Mrs. Elizabeth Livingston, which was part of the Purchase Land of Owaneco, Containing by estimation three hundred acres, be the same more or less, all the said Tracts of land Lying and being within the township of New London aforesaid; and also all my land lying and being within the Township of Colchester aforesaid, however the same is bounded and described, together with the privileges and appurtenances thereof, thereon, or thereunto belonging, To Have and to hold the said granted and bargained premises, with all and singular the appurtenances thereof, unto the said Jonathan Harris & Lebeus Harris, their Heirs and assigns, for ever, in Equal proportion, to them and their own sole and proper use, benefit and behoof. And I, the said James Harris, do covenant for myself, my heirs, executors, and administrators, to and with the said Jonathan Harris and Lebeus Harris, their heirs and assigns, in manner and form following: that is to say, that at and until the ensembling of these presents, I am the true, sole and lawful owner of all the granted premises, and stand lawfully seized thereof in my own right, in fee simple, and that the same is free from all manner of Incumbrances whatsoever; and furthermore, I, the said James Harris, do promise and engage for myself and my heirs for ever, to warrant, secure, and defend the said granted premises unto the said Jonathan Harris and Lebeus Harris, their Heirs and assigns, for ever, against all Lawful Claimers whomsoever. In witness whereof I, the said James Harris, have hereunto set my hand and Seal this 14th day of February, A. D. 1739.

RECORDED N. LONDON RECORDS, VOL. 16, P. 168; ALSO COL. RECORDS, VOL. 7, P. 323.

In 1714, May 20, he was commissioned Lieut. of the North Co. of N. London, and by this title was ever known, although afterwards commissioned Capt. of another Co. in Colchester.

In 1718, he removed to the south part of Colchester (now Salem), where he continued to reside until a short time before his death, in 1757. He was admitted an inhabitant of Colchester by vote in town meeting, 22 Dec., 1718. In 1720-21-22, and perhaps later, he was licensed by the General Court at Hartford as "a taverner," and during the same years, '20, '21, and '22, he was chairman of a committee on the part of Colchester to act as managers in the settlement of a controversy with Norwich, before a commission appointed by the General Court, about their respective town boundaries. In 1725, Oct. 19, he and his son Jas., and sixteen others, petitioned the General Court for a new military company in the parish of New Salem, and presented a roll of sixty-four men ready to enlist; his own name and those of his sons James and Jonathan among them. Of this company he was afterwards chosen and commissioned Captain, but probably only with a view to its early organization, as he resigned soon after. He was "Townsmen," or Selectman, of Colchester in 1730 and '31, and later.

The Parish of New Salem was constituted from the south part of Colchester, the north part of Lyme, and a part of Montville, by the General Court, April 27, 1725, on the petition of Lieut. James Harris and others, with power to settle and support a minister; and in 1819, the same territory was constituted the present town of Salem; the old boundary between Colchester and Lyme being what was called the old Lyme road, or more generally, "the Governor's Road," leading from Salem center, near the present Music Vale Seminary, eastward towards Montville and Norwich. The counties of Hartford and N. London were also divided by the same line, Colchester being then in Hartford Co. It was on this road that James Harris lived, his broad lands lying on each side of it, and his house standing on the north side.

In 1726, Nov. 10, he gave the following deed for the benefit of the new parish, of a meeting-house lot, burying ground, and training field:

He left no will, and his estate was entered for probate at Colchester, March 7, 1757, by his son Lebbeus, who was appointed administrator. In this record he is styled "Capt. James Harris, late of Col., deceased."

He and his wife Sarah were admitted to the church in Montville, 7 Feb., 1732. They had the following

CHILDREN.

13. Sarah, 27 Sept., 1697, m. 1st, John Brown, 2d, Pelatiah Bliss.
14. James, jr., 26 Jan., 1699, m. 1st, Ann Gilbert, 2d, Mercy Thatcher.
15. Mary, 1 Nov., 1702, m. John Holmes of Montville.
16. Jonathan, 15 June, 1705, m. Rachel Otis, 28 July, 1735.
17. Alpheus, 29 Feb., 1708, died 30 Aug. following.

18. Abigail, 17 May, 1711, m. Samuel Fox of Lyme.
19. Lebbeus, 11 Aug., 1713, m. Alice Ransom, 20 Nov., 1738.
20. Alpheus again, 31 Aug., 1716, died a young man.
21. Delight, 17 Oct., 1720, m. Alpheus Rogers, 31 Jan., 1745.

Asa Harris, 8, son of James,

Born in Boston, Mass., 10 Nov., 1680, m. Elizabeth Rogers,* 17 March, 1709, dau. of Samuel, and sister to Sarah, the wife of his brother James; removed from Mohegan soon after marriage, to Preston, Conn., where all his children were born, and where he died 20 Aug., 1715, aged 35. Administration on his estate was granted to his widow Elizabeth, 15 Sept., 1715, and in Nov. following she presented inventory of his personal "goods and chattels," amounting to £109 6s. 4d. Jas. Harris and Robert Denison were her sureties as administratrix. In 1711, Apl. 6, Samuel Rogers, her father, gave a deed "to my (his) dau. Elizabeth, & to her husband, Asa Harris, of 12 acres of swamp land" (four or five miles north of N. London), "up Alewife Brook, near Lake Pond." [N. LONDON LAND RECORDS, VOL. 8, P. 93.]

Soon after his death the family removed from Preston to Saybrook, where his widow Elizabeth died, about 1750. In 1753, the sons Asa, then of Saybrook, and Ephraim, then of Lyme, sold the above "12 acres of swamp land," which they "held, undivided," between them "and the children of our deceased sisters, Anna Beebe and Mercy Waterhouse," to Richard Chapel of N. London. Asa and Elizabeth have the births of the following children on record at Preston:

CHILDREN.

22. Asa, 27 Nov., 1709, m. 1st, ————, m. 2d, Faith McCall.
23. Annah, 27 Mch., 1711, m. Samuel Beebe, 14 May, 1739.
24. Ephraim, 28 Dec., 1712, m. ————.
25. Mercy, 14 Nov., 1714, m. John Waterhouse.

Ephraim Harris, 12, son of James,

Born in Boston, Mass., 11 July, 1688; came to N. London with his father about 1790, then only 2 years old. He was afterwards witness to several Indian deeds to his brother James, and as late as 1706, Sept. 4, he and his brother Asa, both sign as witnesses to the deed of their brother James, to Thos. Jones, of land at Mohegan. No trace of him is found later than 1707, and from other circumstances it is probable that he died before 1710—unmarried.

GENERATION III.

“ Stern tide of human Time! that know’st not rest,
 But, sweeping from the cradle to the tomb,
 Bear’st ever downward on thy dusky breast,
 Successive generations to their doom.”—Scott.

Sarah Harris, 13, dau. of Lieut. James,

Born in N. London, Conn., 27 Sept., 1697, m. John Brown of N. London, 13 Aug., 1724, by whom she had two children. He died about 1727, and she next m. Pelatah Bliss of Colchester, about 1730, by whom she had a son Pelatah, and probably other children. They first settled in Colchester, but in 1744, he and his wife Sarah sold 250 acres of land on “The Old Governor’s Road,” and soon after removed to Bean Hill in Norwich. A part of this 250 acres was received from her father, Lieut. Jas., by deed, 8 Mch., 1739, to Pelatah Bliss, “for the love, good will, and affection I bear to my daughter Sarah, the wife of said Bliss.”

CHILDREN, BY Brown.

 eldest dau. of Ephraim Harris, No. 24.

James Harris, Jr., 14, eldest son of Lieut. James.

He was the celebrated Saybrook merchant; born at Mohegan, N. L. Co., 26 Jan., 1699; removed with his parents to Colchester (Salem Parish), in 1718; was made freeman there in 1722; lister in 1726, and surveyor in 1727. In 1728, Feb. 14, he bought of Peter Pratt, a house, barn, and three acres of land at Saybrook, removed to that town the spring following, and built a store upon what is still called the "Harris wharf," where he afterwards became widely known as a very extensive and successful merchant, having a large export and import trade with the West Indies; and also importing from France and the East Indies, spices and fine fabrics of laces, silks, and brocades. His ledger from 1729 to 1743 is still preserved, and shows large dealings in general merchandise, embracing dry goods, groceries, hardware, crockery and glassware, lumber, farm products, &c., &c.; his custom coming from every part of N. London Co., and from Colchester and Long Island. He was admitted to church in Saybrook, 1736, and his wife Mercy was admitted by letter in 1741.

In 1744 he sold his real estate at Saybrook, and removed to Mohegan, N. London North Parish, where he and his wife united with the church by letter; but in 1747 he was living in N. London, and in 1748, Jan. 16, he "James Harris, jun., of New London, yeoman," repurchased the Saybrook property of Wm. French, of N. London, "it being the same which he, the said James Harris, formerly occupied, possessed, and enjoyed in said Saybrook," and the spring following he resumed his old business there, in which he continued until after 1766, and probably until his death, the date of which is not known. He was born 26 Jan., 1699.

He was twice married. His first wife was Ann Gilbert, dau. of Samuel Gilbert of N. London (and wife Mary, dau. of Sam'l Rogers). She died childless about 1739, and he next mar. Mercy Thatcher of Montville, about 1741, by whom he had one child only, a dau. who bore the joint names of Ann Mercy from both wives.

The story of this idolized child is a sad one. Sole heiress of a princely fortune; of great personal beauty and loveliness of character; accomplished in all that the best local instructors of that day could impart; at the age of 18 her parents decided to send her abroad for a couple of years for higher instruction in England, and for travel in Europe for the advantages of foreign social culture. On the eve of her departure she was inoculated in order to guard against the danger of small-pox, then the dread of foreign travelers. But the virus proved fatal, and she died, after a few days of extreme suffering, in the pest-house at Saybrook. This sudden and tragic blow fell with crushing weight upon her parents, and cast a dark pall of gloom over the wide region throughout which she was known and beloved. My gr. fa. Nath'l Harris, who was her cousin, with his three brothers, Jonathan, Jas., and Joseph, four elder sisters, and their parents attended the funeral; and her extensive and elegant wardrobe, a special outfit for her foreign tour, of the richest silks and brocades in great variety, was distributed among her consins as memorial gifts, and long preserved in the family as sacred relics and souvenirs. And even now, at this late day, it is probable that there are but few of our Harris family whose eyes may rest upon this page, who cannot recall to memory something of the tradition of this sorrowful story.

This daughter, as already stated, was their only

Jonathan Harris, 16, son of Lieut. James,

Born at Mohegan (now Montville), 15 Jan., 1705, m. Rachel, dau. of Hon. Joseph Otis, Esq., of the north parish of N. London, now Montville, 28 July, 1735. Judge Otis was a distinguished man. He came from Scituate, Mass., in 1722, in which State he had been Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Plymouth Co. from 1703 to 1710; Rep. in the Great and Gen. Court of Mass., 1710-13, and was ever held in the highest esteem for great abilities, solid judgment, and sterling integrity of character. He became a very large landholder in N. London, Colchester, Pomfret, and other towns in Conn. His wife was Dorothy Thomas of Scituate, by whom he had twelve children, three sons and nine daughters, of whom Rachel was the youngest.

Rachel was a woman of marked natural abilities; a noble mate to her husband, who was a man of commanding force and dignity of character, and fine personal presence. They settled at first in a small house a few rods southeast of the present old Harris Homestead in Salem, upon land of his father; but in 1739, Feb. 14, he and his brother Lebbeus bought this and other large tracts of land in Salem and Montville Parishes, of their father, Lieut. Jas.*; upon which Jonathan soon after built the above homestead, which he afterwards occupied during his life, and which still remains in the Harris name and family. He was admitted a freeman in Colchester 3 Sept., 1739; and in 1756 and several other years was one of the selectmen. He and his wife Rachel, born 1 Dec., 1713, and the two youngest children, twins, all died suddenly in the month of Sept., 1761, of a malignant and wide-sweeping fever. He died on the 12th, age 56 yrs. 8 mos., and his wife on the 21st, age 47 yrs. 9 mos. and 20 days. His eldest (living) son, Jonathan, jun., was appointed administrator of his estate, June 7, 1762, and presented an inventory in part, amounting to £1,289 11s., including only the homestead property. Jonathan, jun., was also at the same time appointed guardian of two of his sisters, Hannah and Abigail. The estate was not distributed until 1771, ten years after his death, and was then divided among his ten living children—four sons and six daughters. This worthy pair had thirteen children, and the name of this good mother Rachel has been perpetuated as an "heirloom" by her numerous descendants down to the present day.

Born in Mohegan, now Montville, N. London Co., 11 Aug., 1713,
m. Alice, dau. of Robert Ransom of Salem Parish, Col., 20 Nov.,

* See Deed of James Harris, page 26.

1738; settled first in Salem Parish on the old Sterling place, near the present Music Vale Seminary, but a few years after, removed to Montville, upon a part of the large tract of land which he and his brother Jonathan bought of their father, as before stated, in 1739. His father, Lieut. Jas., died in the house of this son, "in Paugwonk, 10 Feb., 1757," in whose family he had lived after the death of his second wife in 1752. About 1760, he removed with all his family to Horton, Kings Co., Nova Scotia, which, about this period, appears to have been a great point of migration for our Harris ancestry. Tradition has it that these early Harris emigrants were the founders of a numerous and conspicuous line of the name in Nova Scotia and the other British American Provinces; many of whom have been of public note, and several have held seats in the Colonial Parliaments. I have not been able to learn the address of any of these descendants, or to follow out their history. Lebbeus visited Colchester as late as 1771, with two of his sons, Lebbeus and Peleg R., and his nephew James, the son of his brother Jonathan, at which time he disposed of his interest in some part of the estate of his father, James. He and his wife Alice have the births of the following children recorded. They had perhaps others later.

Born in Preston, Conn., 27 Nov., 1709; removed with the family to Saybrook, after the death of his father, where he m. 1st, ———, by whom he had a son Asa, and perhaps other children, who died young. He m. 2d, Mary ———, about 1748, by whom he had three children, whose births are not recorded, but who were baptized at Saybrook in infancy, at the dates given below. His name appears as a customer on the "old ledger" of his cousin James Harris, the Saybrook merchant, from 1729 to 1743, when that ledger ends. In 1753, "Asa Harris of Saybrook," deeds to Richard Chapel his interest in 12 acres of land near N. London, which he owned in "common and undivided," as the estate of his father, with his bro. Ephraim and "the children of our deceased sisters, Anna Beebe and Mercy Waterhouse." He was living as late as 1767, and probably died in Saybrook or Lyme, but I find no record of it.

63. Lydia Beebe, 9 Oct., 1748.

Ephraim Harris, 24, son of Asa,

Born in Preston, 28 Dec., 1712, m. ———, about 1735 (probably at Saybrook), but the name of his wife is unknown. He settled first in Saybrook, and his name is found there on the "old ledger" of his cousin Jas. Harris, the merchant, from 1738 to 1743. From Saybrook he removed, about 1745, to the north part of Lyme (now Salem), and from thence, in 1754, to Nova Scotia, where he remained several years. In 1762, Apl. 21, Chas. Dixon, Esquire, of Horton, Kings Co., Nova Scotia, "gave his bond under seal, to Ephraim Harris, yeoman of said Horton, in the sum of £500 lawful money of the Province of Nova Scotia," conditioned that said Dixon "should remove said Ephraim Harris, and all his family and his household goods, to New London, Conn., and to Colchester, by the first vessel bound to those parts, and should pay all costs and charges of said removal; and on arriving at said Colchester, should give a deed to said Harris of a certain tenement of land in said Col.; and also further should pay all the costs that shall arise, or have arisen on the rights of land in s^d Horton township, of s^d Ephraim or of his son Ephraim junior, either in repairing or surveying, or any other costs; being two rights or shares in the whole." A deed of the land in Colchester, referred to in the foregoing bond, was executed by Dixon to Harris at the same time, and both were witnessed by Lebbeus Harris and Nathan DeWolf of said Horton. The tract of land contained 51 acres, lying on Lyme line ("old Governor's Road"), price £200. On the arrival of Ephraim and family at Colchester, the bond and deed were both there recorded.

He died in Colchester, Nov., 1781, aged 69, and his will, dated 20 April, 1781, was presented in Probate at Col., 4 Dec., 1781, and is there on record. In this will he names twelve children, three sons and nine daughters then living. His wife died before him. His large landed estate, partly in Colchester and partly in Lyme, and also all his personal estate, and one-half of all his rights to land in Susquehannah, he bequeaths to his three sons; reserving a part of the house and cellar for the use of three of his daughters, Lydia, Sarah, and Alice, "until they are married." He further provides that his three sons shall make up out of his estate, so much for each of these three unmarried daughters, as would make them equal to the apportionment which he had before made to each of his six other daughters; gives the other half of his "Susquehannah Land Rights," equally to his nine daughters; gives to his son Ephraim his "brass gun," to Elijah his "French gun," and to Elias "1 Dutch plough, 1 hat, 1 great coat, 1 straight bodied coat, and 1 pair woolen breeches;" and makes his second son Elijah his sole executor.

The dates of the births of his children, some of them occurring in Nova Scotia, are not exactly known, but those given are a near approximation. They probably had other children who had died, but it is remarkable that twelve were living, and the youngest of marriageable age at the time of his death.

Mercy Harris, 25, dau. of Asa,

Born in Preston, Conn., 14 Nov., 1714, m. John Waterhouse of Saybrook, about 1738; settled there, and had son John, b. in 1751, and probably earlier children, as her brother Ephraim of Lyme, in a deed dated 17 Dec., 1753, mentions "the children of my deceased sister Mercy Waterhouse." The name of only one child is found, and the mother died soon after his birth in 1751.

Jonathan Harris, 32, son of Jonathan,

Born in Colchester (Salem Parish), Conn., 6 June, 1739, m. Lodema Tozer, 13 Apl., 1761, dau. of Samuel Tozer of Colchester, and sister of Mary, wife of his brother Nathaniel. He was admitted a freeman in Col., 13 Apl., on his wedding day, and soon after marriage removed to Goshen, Orange Co., New York, and thence to Newburgh, where he resided until 1789, when he removed to Athens, Bradford Co., Pa., and bought a tract of land south of Shepard's Creek, on the Susquehanna river, but in 1800, lost it by a defect in the title. He afterwards removed to a part of the large farm of his son Alpheus, near "Spanish Hill," of legendary notoriety, where he lived with his son Samuel until his death. He was an upright and intelligent man, shrewd and somewhat eccentric and facetious. To a question once put to him as to the best business or occupation for a young man, his ready reply was that "loaning money was the best business he knew of, but very difficult to establish." He died 14 Aug., 1820, aged 81 yrs., 2 mos., 8 ds.; and his wid. Lodema died 16 Sept., 1831, aged 90. He was a farmer. They had ten children; the eldest born in Salem, the others in Orange Co., N. Y.

James Harris, 33, son of Jonathan,

Born in Salem Parish, Col., Conn., 13 Dec., 1740, m. Ann Rathbone of Col., 1762; settled at first on the old Sterling place, Salem Center, whence, in 1768, he removed to Horton township, Kings Co., Province of Nova Scotia, and became, according to family tradition, a successful trader in general merchandise and lands; leaving numerous descendants of the name, many of whom have been distinguished, and several have held seats in the British American Provincial Parliaments and other civil stations of honor. He re-visited his native Colchester July, 1771, but I have no further account of his family.

Nathaniel Harris, 34, son of Jonathan,

Born in Colchester (Salem Parish), 2 Apl., 1743, m. Mary Tozer of Col., 1st Feb., 1764, sister of Lodema, wife of his bro. Jonathan, and dau. of Samuel, son of Richard Tozer, one of the first settlers of Col. They settled on the old Harris Homestead, in Salem Parish, now Salem township, where they ever lived, and where they died; and where all their thirteen children, five sons and eight daughters, were born. It is noteworthy that all these children lived to past middle age, all married and became heads of families, and that no shadow of evil habit, vice, crime, or stain of reputation ever rested upon a single one of them.

He served in the war of the Revolution for at least six months, from May 25 to Nov. 25, 1777, as I find his name on the Pay Roll for that period; and was at one time with the army at the "Head of Elk" in Penn.; and although the tradition among his children was that he served during the war, there is no record of longer service, and the very regular births of his children during that war serves to show that he was never long absent from home. He held a commission, however, as Capt. in the State militia.

He was a farmer, and I well remember him, for I am his grandson, and bear his honored name by his own bestowment. He was a proud and high-toned man,—proud of his lineage and blood; proud of his little wife and of his daughters; proud of his farm stock, of his full crops, and of his abundance and rich variety of choice fruits. Of stalwart frame and stately bearing, he was ever tender and gentle as a belted knight to all womankind and to children; but among men he was dignified, austere, and even imperious and lordly. His little wife Mary, mated him most fitly in her sphere, ruling well her household, and inspiring all by the gentleness and potency of her influence and example. In his eyes she was a "spirit of the just, made perfect," and his daughters were all "angels." He died 12 Mch., 1812, aged 79, and his wid. Mary, born 1744, died 22 Mch., 1834, aged 90.

Bethia Harris, 37, dau. of Jonathan,

Born in Salem, Conn., 14 Sept., 1752, m. 23 June, 1778, Col. John Jenkins, b. 27 Nov. (O. S.), or 8 Dec. (N. S.), 1751, son of John Jenkins of Wyoming, Penn. They were mar. in Jenkins Fort, Wyoming, by Rev. Jas. Benedict, ten days before the memorable Indian massacre at Wyoming, and twenty days after Col. Jenkins, then a Lieut. in the Colonial service of the Revolutionary war, had returned from a long, bitter, and perilous captivity of six months among the Indians, from whom he had effected his escape.

His father, John Jenkins, Sen., born in Kingston, R. I., 6 Feb., 1728, came to Colchester, Conn., in 1750, taught school there, and mar. Lydia, dau. of Stephen Gardner, a hotel keeper on the east side of Gardner's Lake, and had the following children, viz., John, who m. Bethia Harris, as before stated; Stephen, b. 22 Feb., 1753, d. 20 Sept., 1808; Benjamin, b. 18 July, 1754, d. Mch., 1787; Amy, b. 12 Jan., 1757, d. 24 Mch., 1834; Thomas, b. 19 Jan., 1761, d. 22 Apl., 1812; William, b. 30 Oct., 1764, d. 1 Nov., 1846; and Wilkes, b. 18 July, 1767, d. 1 Apl., 1838. He removed from Colchester to Wyoming with the first company of Connecticut settlers there in 1769, and was one of the earliest participants and chief agent in the Connecticut movement for settling that valley.

Among the many sad stories of the trials and perils of the pioneer settlers of our American colonies, the story of the early settlement of this lovely valley of Wyoming is the most mournful and memorable of all, and has a peculiar interest to our Harris family. These Connecticut settlers claimed title there under the express terms of the charter of King Charles II. to Conn., in 1662; which covered all this western territory; but they were in the very infancy of their settlement, imperiled by prowling, armed, and organized bands of Pennamites, as they were called, who claimed that the charter subsequently granted to Wm. Penn, in 1681, embraced the same territory also.

These marauding bands, with their Indian allies, whose natural hostility to the settlers they could easily incite, by their joint inroads, kept the settlers and the very existence of the settlement in constant alarm and peril for several years, murdering, or taking into captivity, men, women, and children, without discrimination; burning their rude dwellings, destroying their cattle and their crops, and more than once compelling the whole band of settlers to flee for their lives; many of them pursuing their weary way on foot with their little ones, through the wilderness, back to their friends in Conn. In the war of the Revolution, which came even before their other perils had ceased, they were made the special victims of British, Tory, and Indian barbarities, and the ever-memorable "Massacre of Wyoming," which has been the pathetic burden of song and story over both continents, was the fitting and crowning event of their long suffering.

In all these events and perils John Jenkins, sen., was the recognized champion and head; the founder, leader, and defender of the settlement. He was appointed by Conn. its first General Agent for the settlement of Wyoming; was a surveyor and conveyancer by profession, and made its first surveys; drafted most or all of its early public documents; was its first magistrate and justice of the peace, and its first Presiding or Chief Judge of Court; and was five times sent as its representative to the Colonial Assembly of Conn. from Wyoming, then called Westmoreland, and made part of Litchfield Co., Conn.; a circumstance which may seem a little strange to this generation. He died in Wyoming, in Nov., 1784, just after the close of the Revolutionary war, aged 56, leaving his country and his beloved valley in peace.

John Jenkins, jun., served as Lieut. in the army of the revolution until the close of the war, and was afterwards a Major and Col. of militia. He was by profession a lawyer, surveyor, and conveyancer; carried on large farming operations, iron smelting, etc.; was sheriff of Luzérne Co.; County Commissioner; member of Assembly; held many local offices; for many years town clerk, supervisor, assessor, etc; was Surveyor General of the Conn. Susquehanna Com., and for some time the General Agent.

He settled in Exeter township, on the site of the battle-ground where stood old Wintermoot fort, where he died 19 Mch., 1827, aged 75. His widow, Bethia, a woman of rare mental and moral endowments and culture, who had shared conspicuously in all the perils and hardships of the valley, and whose sufferings amid those wild scenes of blood and carnage were the nursery tales in my young days, of every Harris household in the old hive of the family in New London Co., died 12 Aug., 1842, aged 90. They had the following

CHILDREN—Jenkins.

136. Justin, 5 Dec., 1800, m. Happy K. Champlin, 14 June, 1843.

Mary Harris, 39, dau. of Jonathan,

Born in Colchester, Conn. (Salem Parish), 1 Jan., 1756, m. John Derthick of Col., 25 Dec., 1776; settled first in Salem, afterwards in Lebanon, Conn.; but in May, 1793, this worthy pair left their home in Conn. with a family of eight young children, for a new home in the West, their only mode of conveyance for themselves and all their household goods being a yoke of oxen and cart, and a saddle-horse for the mother and her infant child; and in this way the whole journey was made, arriving at their new place of settlement at Richfield Springs, Otsego Co., N. Y., then a wilderness, in the month of June following, and erecting their log hut after their arrival. They remained there through life. He was a Col. of militia; highly respected, and of considerable note. Of their nine children, Lydia only is living.

CHILDREN—Derthick.

137. Dudley Otis, 17 Oct., 1777, m. Anna Bireh, 8 Meh., 1800.
138. Jonathan, 1779, went to Europe young; never heard from.

145. Lydia, 10 Oct., 1795, unmar.; living on the old homestead with her nephew John, No. 494.

Ruth Ann Harris, 40, dau. of Jonathan,

Born in Colchester, Conn., 10 May, 1758, m. Nathan Scoville, son of Nathan of Lebanon, Conn., in 1784; settled first at Lebanon, but before June 30, 1790 (probably in 1787), he had removed to what was then called Kings District, town of Canaan, Columbia Co., N. Y., where he was living at that date and a year or two later, whence he removed to Merryall, in the township of Wyalusing, Bradford Co., Penn., where they remained during life. She died about 1820. They had several children, but I have the names of but two only. It is said that Harris, one of their sons, was at one time mayor of N. Y. city; but I find this to be a mistake. He may have been mayor of some interior city of that State.

CHILDREN—Scoville.

146. Nathan, ab. 1786, m. Hannah Black, about 1814.
147. Harris, ab. 1790, m. ———.

Asa Harris, 3d, 54, son of Asa, jun.,

Born in Saybrook, Conn., 21 May, 1737, m. Faith McCall of Lebanon, Conn., 23 July, 1761, who was born 12 Feb., 1737; settled in Lebanon (Goshen Parish), and were both admitted to the church there 11 Apl., 1763. He was made a freeman 10 Sept., 1765, and was a land-holder there. In 1765, Oct. 13, "Asa Harris of Lebanon," deeds land to Jared Hinckly. In 1768, Asa Harris and wife Faith of Leb. deed land to Israel Everett, and the same date also to Archippus McCall. In 1771, "Asa Harris of Lebanon" deeds land to Thos. Payne; all the above lands lying in Goshen Parish. This is the last entry of his deeds on Lebanon record, and he removed soon after to Mass., at or near Pittsfield.*

Asa and Faith have the births of their first five children recorded in Lebanon, and their baptisms are on Goshen church records. The others were probably born in Berkshire Co., Mass.

CHILDREN.

148. Asa 4th, 18 April, 1762, baptized same day.
149. Hannah, 16 Sept., 1763, bap. 2 days old.

Ephraim Harris, 64, son of Ephraim,
 Born in Salem, Conn., 1736, m. Lydia Beebe of Montville; went with his father to Horton, Nova Scotia, in 1754, where he remained about eight years, and became a land-holder there, but returned to Colchester (Salem parish) in 1762, where he settled, married, and ever after resided, a farmer. He was made a freeman there, 9 Apl., 1764. He, like his father and many others of this branch, seems to have left no record, public or private, of the births of himself or his children, and no headstone bearing any inscription whatever, to denote the age, or to identify the last resting-place of a single member of these ancient families, is known to exist. It is certain, however, that he had the following children, in the order stated, and at or near the dates of birth given.

“ Time rolls his ceaseless course. The race of yore
Who danced our infancy upon their knee,
And told our marveling boyhood legends store,
Of their strange ventures, happ'd by land or sea,
How are they blotted from the things that be!
How few, all weak and withered of their force,
Wait on the verge of dark eternity,
Like stranded wrecks—the tide returning hoarse
To sweep them from our sight. Time rolls his ceaseless course.”

Alpheus Harris, 93, son of Jonathan,

Born in Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y., 17 July, 1765, m. Jerusha Miller, 1795, by whom he had seven children. She was born in Westchester Co., N. Y., and died in Athens, Pa., about 1811, and he next m. Betsey Clapp, in 1813, by whom he had four children. She was b. in Dutchess Co., N. Y., 2 Nov., 1786, and d. 2 Nov., 1823, aged 37. He was a farmer; settled at first on the old Harris homestead in Athens, Bradford Co., Penn., where his first three children were born; removed, about 1801, to Mt. Morris, N. Y., where his next two children were born, and thence, in about 1806, back again to Athens, and bought there a valuable tract of four or five hundred acres of land, including the ancient "Spanish Hill" mounds and other ruins of fabulous note, alluded to in the account of his father Jonathan, No. 32. This farm was bought under a Connecticut title, and he occupied it in quiet security, all unconscious of impending danger until 1810, when a suit of ejectment was brought under a Pennsylvania title, and decided against him. He was allowed, however, to remain, and his son-in-law, Benjamin P. Snyder, afterwards bought the farm back, and it is still in the possession of the Snyder family. There were many cases similar to this, growing out of the long conflict of title between the early Connecticut and Pennsylvania patentees. Mrs. Perkins in her "EARLY TIMES ON THE SUSQUEHANNA," 1870, p. 146, says, "Mr. Harris was a sensible and godly man. It is said that he was the first man that maintained family worship in the township of Athens." He d. in Athens, 2 April, 1850, aged 35.

Susannah Harris, 100, dau. of Jonathan,

Born 12 July, 1781, in Goshen, Orange Co., N. Y., m. Gen. Wm. Augustus Mills, 30 Mch., 1803, son of Rev. Samuel Mills of Canandaigua, N. Y.; settled in Mt. Morris, Livingston Co., N. Y., where they both died. Mrs. Mills lived an active, earnest Christian life; was a most devoted and faithful wife and mother; a most amiable and valuable member of community, and one of the brightest ornaments and pillars of her church.

Gen. Wm. A. Mills, at the early age of 16, was among the pioneer settlers of the Genesee Valley, and chose as his home the spot where now the lovely village of Mount Morris is located; then a wilderness, inhabited only by Indians. By his sagacity and energy of character, he rose to prominence; became one of the principal founders and fathers of the settlement; a kind-hearted man, of sterling integrity and excellent judgment, and had the confidence of all who knew him. He was Supervisor twenty years; Brig. Gen. and Maj. Gen. of militia; an extensive land-holder, and very successful farmer, and ever foremost in every public enterprise for improvement. He lived on the same spot, still known as "HOMESTEAD PLACE," for more than fifty years. His wife d. there, 26 Apl., 1840, aged 59, and he d. in 1844, aged 67. He left no will, and after his death his nine children met and amicably divided his large estate among themselves, to the entire satisfaction of all, without recourse to any form of law, and without any expense, save their own mutual partition deeds. Such an instance of family harmony is worthy of record in a work like this.

Minard Harris, 101, son of Jonathan, jun.,
 Born Oct., 1784, m. Mrs. Emily Oakley of Newburgh, N. Y.; settled there; a hatter by trade; died 13 Dec., 1867, aged 83, at the home of his uncle James Harris, N. Y. city. His widow is said to be still living in Newburgh. They had no children.

Lebbeus Harris, 102, son of Capt. Nathaniel,
 Born in Salem, Conn., 19 Sept., 1764, m. Sarah Rogers of Colchester, 20 Jan., 1792, who was b. 12 July, 1776. They removed soon after marriage to Middlebury, Vt., where they both died.
 He d. 10 Dec., 1818, aged 50, a farmer. His wid. Sarah, soon after m. 2d, Benajah Douglass of Brandon, Vt., and by this marriage became the foster-mother of the late Hon. Stephen A.
 Douglas of Illinois, the renowned U. S. Senator, and candidate for President of the United States in the memorable Lincoln campaign of 1859.

Beriah Douglass, the father of Stephen A., died in 1813, when Stephen was only three months old, and the infant was taken into the family of his gr. fa. Benajah, who also died soon after, leaving the little Stephen to the sole care, support, and management of this twice widowed mother, Sarah, who had already five children of her own. But this worthy mother cordially accepted the trust; and early discerning his peculiar traits of high future promise, she devoted herself to their development with a most noble and self-sacrificing fidelity; sending him to Brandon Academy, and giving him other educational advantages, which she could ill afford, even to her own children.

Senator Douglas never forgot her sacrificing and affectionate devotion to him; and in an interview with the writer in Hartford, during the Presidential campaign referred to, he said with deep emotion, that the loving heart, the wise counsellings, and the cheering encouragement and influence of this foster-mother, had been the great inspiration of his life.

Although not by birth one of our clan, yet having been in infancy adopted into one of our Harris wigwams, and reared beside one of our council fires, it seems fitting and honoring to us, to give him this niche in our family group.

Wid. Sarah d. 20 Sept. 1850, aged 74, without issue by her second marriage. Lebbeus and Sarah had the following

CHILDREN.

- 308. Lebbeus, 20 Mch., 1794, m. Charlotte M. Judd, 1820.

Joel Harris, 103, son of Capt. Nathaniel,
Born in Salem, Conn., 8 July, 1766, m. —, 1790, Dimmis Bulkeley, born 10 Dec., 1767, dau. of Peter of Colchester, Conn.; removed from Col. to Stowe, Vt., soon after marriage, where they ever after resided. He was a farmer. His wife died 26 April, 1843, aged 75, and he died the next day, and they both were buried in one grave, "in death undivided." Like all his brothers and sisters, he had a strong development of the religious element, and great power in awakening thought and emotion in others. He was a Methodist local preacher and exhorter, as well as farmer, and applied himself faithfully to both callings during most of his life. In Sept., 1838, about five years before his death, and when he was over 72 years old, his dwelling house, in which he had ever resided in Stowe, was accidentally burned to the ground, in the middle of the night, with all its contents; the startled inmates being barely able to escape with their lives, in their night robes. The loss was a severe calamity to the aged patriarch and his good wife Dimmis.

Sarah Harris, 106, dau. of Capt. Nathaniel, Born in Salem, Ct., Thursday, 10 Sept., 1772, m. Capt. William A. Morgan of Salem, 10 June, 1804, as his second wife. He m. 1st, Lydia Smith, dau. of Nathan of Groton, Conn., 4 May, 1776, who d. 4 Jan., 1804, by whom he had thirteen children, six sons and seven daughters, and by Sarah he had four children, two sons and two daughters, of whom I am the eldest. All these seventeen children, except Griswold, who died in his 21st, and Sarah M., who died in her 15th year, lived to marry and become heads of families, but only three now survive, Rebecca, an elder sister, aged 80, myself, aged 73, and the youngest brother Griswold E., aged 67. Sarah, my honored mother, became by this marriage the foster-mother of nearly the entire brood, and no line of distinction was ever recognized or felt among us; but as the first thirteen are not of the Harris lineage, their further history will not be herein given, but may be found in full in the "MORGAN FAMILY" genealogy, published by me in 1869. It is fitting, however, to say, that though reared as the children of a farmer, all the sons, save the youngest, still on the homestead, sought other vocations, generally in the mercantile line, as did also most of the sons-in-law. All were fairly successful in business; several of them eminently so; and they have left a numerous posterity, who, in moral worth, and social and public distinction, stand prominent above the average rank. It was a common remark of our honored father that "he had reared a family of seventeen children and never had occasion to blush for the conduct of either of them." And it is a pleasant reflection to me that, although they all settled near each other, nine of them with their wives and husbands, making a group of eighteen, in this city of Hartford, and were in constant fraternal and business intercourse with each other, I have never, in a long life, known of an unkind reflection, or an hour's alienation or estrangement of feeling between any of the entire family.

Our honored father Wm. A., born in Groton, Conn., 24 Nov., 1754, first settled there, where eleven of his children were born; removed Mch., 1796, to Salem, and thence, Mch., 1814, to Lebanon, Conn., where he died, 22 Mch., 1842, aged 88. He was a sergeant in the army of the Revolution, and present at the battle of Bunker Hill, 17 June, 1775, then in his 21st year of age. He was a man of good natural abilities, and some reading; social and companionable in intercourse; fond of anecdote and repartee; of kind and genial sympathies; loved his friends and made them feel it. His family discipline was thorough and decided, but often peculiarly droll and comical. His smart rap falling upon one ear, and one of his apt witticisms falling upon the other at the same moment, often left his children in ludicrous doubt whether they were crying at the rap or laughing at the wit.

Sarah, my sainted mother, was a woman of rare mental and moral endowments, a devoted wife and mother, and a devout, sincere, and earnest Christian, whose wise counsels and influence have ever been more than all things else, under Providence, the inspiration of my own life; and it is the sweet and holy fragrance of her memory that now inspires me in this work in honor of her name, and of "her kindred according to the flesh." She was left many years a widow, and died under my own roof in Hartford, 24 Nov., 1855, aged 83 years, 2 mos. and 14 days.

 384. Lois Sarah, 9 Apl., 1827, d. 14 same month.

Lydia Harris, 112, dau. of Capt. Nathaniel,
 Born in Salem, 16 Nov., 1784, m. Asa Rathburn of Salem, 17 Apl., 1825, as his second wife. Several years of her early life were spent as a helpless invalid, in extreme suffering, and utterly unable to move herself, or to be removed from her bed, the cause of which was never known; and her recovery was as singular and surprising. They settled in Salem, where he died, leaving her a childless widow. She removed to Rockville, Conn., into the family of her niece, Mrs. R. S. Lewis, where her remaining years were cheered and comforted by a patient and devoted care, worthy of all praise. She died 11 Nov., 1873, aged 89.

Hannah D. Harris, 113, dau. of Capt. Nathaniel,
 Born in Salem, Conn., 19 Sept., 1786, m. 2 June, 1813, Jared Starr Smith, born 23 Mch., 1790, son of Joseph of Waterford, Conn.; settled there at first, but afterwards in Lyme and in Salem, and in 1819 removed to N. London, where most of their eight children were born. He was a carpenter, and was for two years one of the selectmen of N. London. In May, 1835, he removed to Ohio, where he died 8 Feb., 1859, aged 69. His wid. Hannah D., aged 92 (1878), is the only one surviving of the thirteen children of Capt. Nathaniel. She now resides with her dau. Sally M. (Wedge) at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Jonathan Harris, 114, son of Capt. Nathaniel,

Born in Salem, Conn., 21 Aug., 1788, m. 7 Apl., 1813, Louisa Jones, dau. of Capt. Daniel Jones of Salem; settled on the old Harris homestead of his father and grandfather in Salem, as a farmer, where he d. 28 Apl., 1850, aged 62. His wife, born 27 Oct., 1794, d. in Rockville, 13 July, 1861, aged 67. They had the following thirteen children, but it will be seen that death invaded this fold like a hungry wolf, seizing more than half their number in early life. Six of them are yet living. My own recollections of this couple are exceedingly pleasant, and if ever the Fates ordain and effect a perfect conjugal mating, in taste, thought, and feeling, this was one. They were both the natural "children of song," and their voices, of peculiar sweetness, melody, and timbre, were of perfect accord, in part and counterpart. Song was the inspiration of their lives, and whenever either voice broke forth in some impromptu strain, its counterpart, however distant, or busied with toil or care, would in an instant be heard blending in harmony.

 GENERATION VI.

“ How the stately years march onward!—how the centuries increase!
 How the cycles roll and gather!—how the lives of mortals cease!
 Life is but a repetition; for the man who lives to-day,
 Loves and hopes, like countless millions, who have lived and passed away.”
Anson G. Chester.

James Harris, 264, son of Alpheus,
Born in Athens, Pa., Oct., 1817, m. ————. He presents, in a marked degree, an indifference to kinship, which characterizes many of his peculiar branch; refusing to make any reply whatever to my repeated enquiries concerning himself or his family. A few members of this branch afford honorable exceptions to this characteristic, and have given aid in this chilling field. But all I can learn about him is, that he is a painter by trade, and a dealer in paint in N. Y. city; resides at 212 8th ave.; had two children, son and daughter.

CHILDREN.

650. Emma, ———, m. ——— Van Derveer.

She died 10 Feb., 1861, aged 34, and he next m. her sister Sarah Kirby, 3 Nov., 1863, born 7 Apl., 1833, by whom he had one child. They settled and now reside in Athens, Bradford Co., Pa. He has been for 22 years in mercantile business, which he has made successful; at one time dealing largely in lumber; in 1865, organized and became president of the "First National Bank" at Athens, in which office he still continues. Like his brother James above, he evidently knows but little of his ancestry or present relatives, and manifests as little interest concerning them.

CHILDREN.

652. Lizzie, 3 June, 1852, died 12 June, 1859.

653. Frank Kirby, 17 Feb., 1857.

Nathaniel Harris Morgan, 353, son of William A., Born in Salem, Conn., 8 June, 1805; removed, when 8 years old, with his parents, to Lebanon, Conn., m. 4 May, 1830, Harriet Emeline Saxton, b. 19 Nov., 1807, dau. of Nathaniel of Lebanon; settled, and still reside, in Hartford, Conn.; reared as a farmer's son, but early became a sailor; at the age of 21, and for several years after, was in the West India trade as commander and part owner, afterwards merchandising for a brief period, but generally in public service; has been twelve years a prison warden; school superintendent; first selectman; alderman; sheriff; judge; State commissioner on tax laws and taxation; president of Board of Trustees of the "Hartford Home" for friendless boys; was one of the founders of "The Phoenix Ins. Co." (fire) of Hartford, in 1854, and became its first president; was for many years a prominent actor in all the leading legislative, executive, and financial measures of the city government; in 1856, made a thorough revision and digest, under city authority, of the whole municipal code; and later, under the same authority, drafted and obtained from the State Legislature the present city charter, and prepared an entire new code of ordinances in accordance therewith; but for the last twenty years, in broken health and extreme suffering from spasmodic asthma, which has reduced his frame from its normal weight of 165 pounds to a skeleton of 96 pounds, he has been compelled to abstain almost entirely from all active pursuits, and to confine himself chiefly within the walls of his own habitation. Under this restraint, in order to prevent his mental machinery from rusting within its old and feeble shell, he resorts to his pen, in this and kindred labors, and to his books, especially to those most expressive of modern thought in art, science, and general discovery, in this wonderfully progressive age; and in this way—a kind Providence having fairly favored him “in his basket and in his store”—he succeeds in keeping himself, in a reasonable degree, contented, cheerful, and happy.

HARRIET EMELINE, above; graduate Hartford High School, class of 1862, died instantly and without any premonition, on the morning of April 28, 1863, at Hartford, aged 19 years, 6 mos., and 15 days. Four months prior she had a fearful fall, which for a few moments stunned her into unconsciousness, but from which she soon recovered, and no further effects from it were afterwards manifested or apprehended, until the fatal morning when, in a second of time, she passed from life to life eternal, in the presence of her astonished, bewildered, and heart-riven parents, without a word or sign. One of the loveliest of earth's daughters, her whole life and character in the world below seemed better adapted to the world above, and surely a father's heart and hand may be indulged in recording here this brief memorial, and saying of her early exit,— Suddenly, but safely.

He was in early life a mason and builder in Boston, and, from an active mental temperament, soon acquired much influence among his fellow craftsmen in forming associations and in giving lectures and addresses for their improvement. This soon led him into the pulpit, which he entered without prior theological training, as an itinerant preacher. But holding no very definite creed, and with a mind naturally spurning sectarian restraint, he left this calling, after a year or two, to engage as editor and business manager of a weekly religious journal in Providence, R. I. He was afterwards editor of the Rhode Island Freeman, and later, of the Providence Daily Tribune, and has ever been an occasional contributor, both in prose and verse, to the public press. He has also been engaged, to some extent, in mercantile pursuits. They reside in Providence; have had no children.

Nathaniel Harris, 360, son of Nathaniel,

Born in Boston, 24 Mch., 1812, m. 16 Nov., 1840, Sarah A. Preston of Boston. They settled first in Boston, but their family residence has for several years been in Brookline, near the city, where they still reside. He graduated from the Adams Public High School in Boston at the age of 13, and engaged as clerk in a grocery store for two years. In 1827, aged 15, he entered as clerk to the widely renowned merchant and philanthropist, Hon. Amasa Walker of Boston, in his extensive shoe and leather business, and after seven years' service, at the age of 22, became his partner under the firm of Amasa Walker & Co. He has continued this business with various partners, and with eminent success as a merchant and financier; was a director of the Atlantic Bank (now Atlantic National Bank) of Boston twenty-five years, and its president for fifteen years.

Hon. Jonathan N. Harris, 394, son of Jonathan,

Born in Salem, Conn., 18 Nov., 1815, m. 1st, Jane M. Brown, dau. of Benjamin Brown of N. London, 8 May, 1843, who was the mother of all his eight children, six of whom, and herself, are now dead. He next m. 19 July, 1869, Martha Ann Strong, dau. of Hon. Lewis Strong of Northampton, Mass. She was granddaughter of Gov. Caleb Strong of Massachusetts, and her mother, Maria Chester, was dau. of Hon. Stephen Chester, former High Sheriff of Hartford County, Conn. They reside in New London.

The personal history of Jonathan Newton Harris affords a fine and striking example of the honorable and successful career of an American boy, without any adventitious aid of birth, fortune, or circumstance save what falls to lot of every son of a humble New England farmer in moderate circumstances. Reared to toil upon a small and hard farm in Salem, he was placed, when nearly 17 years old, as clerk in a small country variety store in Hamburg, Conn., where he remained about two years. In 1836, he engaged as clerk with Smith & Cady of N. London, in the grocery and hardware business, until 1838, when he commenced business for himself, with a capital of $100 only, as a small grocer. This business he made successful, and in 1844, received into partnership George W. Brown, the brother of his wife, under the firm of Harris & Brown, which continued until 1848, when he again continued the business alone until 1853, greatly extending it and adding a large line of farm tools and agricultural implements, and also hardware, iron, steel, etc., of his own importation, being the first direct importer of these articles in New London. In 1853, his firm was Harris, Ames & Co., and in 1857, Harris, Williams & Co., in the same business, and with constant and ever-increasing success, until 1865, when he retired from merchandising with a handsome fortune.

Meantime, in June, 1848, he, in company with Perry Davis of Providence, R. I., established the great medical house of J. N. Harris & Co., at Cincinnati, O., which still continues and has been eminently successful; and from 1862 to 1873, he was partner and capitalist of the firm of Hill & Harris, owners and operators of the celebrated "Hill & Harris" coal mine in Pennsylvania, which was also another eminent success.

He has been for twenty-four years, and still is, an active director in the Bank of Commerce (now the National Bank of Commerce) of N. London, and in 1876, was elected president of the N. London "City National Bank," which office he now holds; was representative in General Assembly of the State in 1855; State senator in 1864, and mayor of the city of N. London for six years, from 1856 to 1862. In 1875 he was made chairman of the State Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of the State of Connecticut, and now, in the full and ripe vigor of his manhood, is devoting himself to the high objects of that association, with a liberality, energy, and zeal even more fervent and effective than he has ever manifested in his own private enterprises. And yet he might well claim excuse, after a life of such persistent and unceasing care, anxiety, and honest labor, were he to decline these extra and heavy burdens and responsibilities, and retire to the quiet rest and enjoyment of his own princely fortune and his own delightful home.

The simple story of this career commends itself as an encouraging example to the youth of our family, and indeed of our land, but I should fail greatly in the telling, were I not to add, most emphatically, for their special notice, that the same faithful and diligent attention to business; the same high sense of honor, and the same unspotted integrity of character, which first gave to this young grocer, with a capital of only an hundred dollars, an unlimited credit wherever known, have ever been the marked and distinguishing characteristics of his whole life.

His wife Martha Ann is also an efficient and zealous co-laborer in the same general field of Christian philanthropy; holding now the office of president of the Eastern Connecticut Branch of the Woman's American Board of Foreign Missions. They reside in N. London.

Mary Jenkins, 454, dau. of James,
 Born in Exeter, 1 Nov., 1817, m. 17 Nov., 1842, Alpheus M. Jeffords, b. 3 July, 1814. He resides in Wyoming, Pa., merchant, inn-keeper, and postmaster. She died 22 May, 1862, aged 45. They had no children.

Hon. Steuben Jenkins, 455, son of James,
 Born in Exeter, Pa., 28 Sept., 1819, m. 24 Feb., 1846, Catharine Breese, b. 27 July, 1822. They reside in Wyoming, Luzerne Co., Pa. Mr. Jenkins was born on the memorable battle-ground of Wyoming, in the old homestead of his grandfather, Col. John Jenkins, a hero of the Pennamite and Revolutionary wars, and most of his life has been spent in the vicinity hallowed and made historically classic by the deeds of his ancestors. [Vide pp. 43-5.]

Of marked intelligence and cultivation in almost every department of knowledge, his own facile and ever-busy pen has contributed largely to the public journals of the day, upon historical, scientific, literary, social, and many other subjects; and in his business career he has evinced the same versatile capacity, industry, and energy of character. He commenced as common school teacher in Pittston, but soon engaged in mercantile business at Wyoming, devoting his spare hours, more or less, to other subjects, especially to the study of law; in 1847, August term, was admitted to the Bar as an attorney, and entered upon the practice of law. In 1853, his health failing under too severe labor, he accepted a position in Washington, D. C., in charge of the Foreign Mail Bureau, where his labors were lighter. In 1855, he returned to Wyoming, and with his brother James, established the banking house of Jenkins & Brother, but the great financial panic of 1857 soon impending, he prudently withdrew from its hazards, closed up his banking business in 1858, and resumed the practice of law at Wilkes Barre. In 1856, and again in 1857, he was elected to the State Legislature, and bore an active and influential part in all the prominent measures of those sessions. In 1863, was chosen clerk and counsel of the Commissioners of Luzerne Co., and continued in that office till 1870, when, his health again failing, he resigned, and has since been engaged in farming, diversifying it, however, with a wide variety of other historical, scientific, and business pursuits, enough in themselves to overburden an ordinary man, but which his active mind and restless industry seems to seek as a recreation. He reads Latin, Greek, German, French, and Spanish; has the largest and best collection of Indian relics in the United States, and probably in the world, and also a large cabinet of fossils, minerals, shells, etc.; has devoted many years in collecting an immense mass of material for a history of Wyoming, which he is now preparing for the press; and in tracing the genealogies of all the early settlers of Wyoming, of any note; has been for seventeen years either secretary or president of Luzerne County Agricultural Society; seventeen years secretary of Wyoming Bible Society; eleven years director of Forty Fort Cemetery Association, and for the same period secretary of Wyoming Monument Association; prison commissioner and clerk of Board since 1870, and director of First National Bank, Pittston, each of which offices he still holds. He was for fifteen years trustee of Luzerne Presbyterian Institute; ten years trustee of Presbyterian church of Wyoming; seven years director and secretary of School Board in Kingston, and has presided over various school institutes, county conventions, and other public assemblages, with native grace and dignity. He is also honorary member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania; of the Historical Society of Bradford County; of American Anthropological Society; and president of the Jenkins Institute of History and Science, of which he was the founder. And in addition to his multifarious accomplishments he is a musician of high order, performing skillfully on various instruments, and well versed in mechanics and the fine arts. His devotion to the public welfare and his affable and genial spirit has ever made him personally popular, and his strict integrity of character and high moral qualities are held in the highest regard as widely as he is known.*

His sympathies in this effort to gather up for preservation the history of our common Harris lineage were so quickly and keenly enlisted, that he made the journey from Wyoming to Hartford for the sole purpose of uniting with me in a joint and final hunt over N. London County, among the early archives, records, gravestones, and other memorials of the old patriarchs and matrons of our common ancestry. My thanks are specially due to him for furnishing the full line of descendants from his grandmother, Bethia Harris (No. 37), and for much other family data.

Edward H. Olmstead, 758, son of Nathaniel H., Born in Savannah, Ga., 17 Jan., 1819, m. — Andrews, who died 4 Sept., 1870. He is supposed by the family to be living in Savannah, and to have had five children—four sons living, and a daughter, who died; but all my efforts to hear from him have failed.
 The civil war, so generally disastrous to the South, was especially so to him and his business, and nothing very definite seems to have been known or heard of him since. Having personally, from early memories, a warm kindred regard for this Olmstead family,
 I regret my utter failure to obtain further information.

ADDITIONS.

The following additions were not received until too late for insertion and arrangement in their proper place and order; but by the careful references given to former numbers, very little difficulty will be found in tracing their connection and lineage. I was never able, by several years of diligent research, to ascertain what became of Asa 3d, No. 54, and wife Faith McCall, or any of that family, after they left Lebanon, Conn., in 1771 (p. 47), and had abandoned all hope of tracing them, supposing them to have migrated with others of our early clan to the British Provinces. But just as this work was ready for the press I discovered, accidentally, that a certain Nathaniel Harris, No. 155, who had married Nancy Derthick, dau. of Mary Harris, No. 39, of our family, but was never supposed to be of our stock, was nevertheless, in fact, one of the sons of Asa and Faith, who went from Lebanon to Pittsfield, Mass., and there had other children. Upon this discovery, I immediately pressed to its utmost, every means in my power to gather in this long-lost and important branch; and by the quick responses and earnest coöperation of its wide-awake members, have had most eminent success. Had a few weeks more time been at command, I could have perfected every detail, most fully; and as it is, I am more than gratified, and welcome them all most cordially into our camp, with the thanks of the whole sept and clan for their fraternal spirit and sympathy.

He is the only surviving child of his widowed mother. I solicited his photograph, to have it engraved for presentation here, and have a special pleasure in presenting it as a fitting representative of the line of Asa, No. 8, many of whose long-lost branches have so recently been discovered and restored to the family group; and also as a specimen of the "Young America" of our family. His history and career are yet before him, to be determined by his own future conduct, and must be written by another hand; but from his marked intelligence and high aspirations, it thus far seems bright with hope and promise.

APPENDIX.

EARLY HARRIS SETTLERS IN NEW ENGLAND.

The following list of early settlers in New England, by the name of HARRIS, comprises nearly, and perhaps all, who are known to have left families or descendants behind them. There were many others of the name in New England, who left no descendants. They are here given as hints, or suggestive clues to others of the name to trace out, it may be, their own pedigree. I have never found any evidence that either of them was in any way related to our ancestor, James Harris of Boston, and the probabilities are that he had no relatives of the name among the early emigrants.

1. WALTER of Weymouth, Mass., came over in the ship William and Francis, 1632. Probably his mother, "widow of Walter Harris," and his brother Gabriel came with him, but returned to England "for property left behind," and was lost on his passage back. He was at Weymouth as early as 1635, and between that date and 1650 had acquired there a large landed estate. The "Harris Range" of lands, so-called, and still known by the name, belonged to him. He removed to New London, Conn., in 1652, and had a house, lot, and eight acres of upland assigned him there. He died in New London 6 Nov., 1654, and his wife Mary died 29 Jan., 1656. The inventory of the estate of "Walter Harris and Mary his wife, both deceased," was taken at N. London, 4 Apl., 1656. This pair were the progenitors of one of the most numerous class of the Harris name in this country; its ancient hive being in N. London. I have a large list in manuscript of these descendants, gathered under the circumstances alluded to in the introduction, p. 10. They left two sons, Gabriel and Thomas; and three daughters, Sarah, m. a Lane; Mary, m. a Lawrence; and Elizabeth, m. a Week.

2. GABRIEL of N. London, son of Walter, m. 1st, Mary, and had Walter, b. 24 Nov., 1654, d. next month; m. 2d, Elizabeth Abbott, and had Elizabeth, b. 5 June, 1656; Thomas, 19 July, 1658; Peter, 8 Oct., 1660; John, 12 June, 1663; Samuel, 14 July, 1656; Mary, 21 May, 1667; James, bapt. 3 Sept., 1671, died young; Joseph, born 16 Jan., 167 $\frac{1}{2}$.

3. THOMAS of N. London, son of Walter (1), went to England after the death of his father, and, according to a doubtful tradition, never returned. There was a Thomas Harris on the highway com. of N. London, 16 Aug., 1665, who, if not this one, was of unknown antecedents.

4. THOMAS of N. London, son of Gabriel (2), m. Mary Wetherell, d. in Barbadoes, 9 June, 1691, aged 33, leaving an only child, Mary, b. 4 Nov., 1690, regarded as the richest heiress in the settlement. She m. Walter Butler, 1712.

5. PETER of N. L., son of Gabriel (2), m. Elizabeth Manwaring, 7 July, 1686, and had Samuel, b. 29 Apl., 1689; Thomas, 31 Aug., 1691; Elizabeth, 10 Aug., 1693; Mary, 10 Mch., 1696, died young; Hannah, 14 May, 1698; Peter, 6 Apl., 1700; Mary again, 11 Mch., 1702; Johanna, 3 Apl., 1703; Martha, 1705; Stephen, 1707, and Joseph, 1709.

6. JOHN of N. L., son of Gabriel (2), m. Hannah ———, and had Gabriel, b. about 1686; Oliver, ab. 1688; Joseph, ab. 1690; removed to Canterbury, and ancestor of Dr. Harris of that town; Elizabeth, ab. 1692; Henry, ab. 1695; Thomas, ab. 1698, drowned 21 Oct., 1718, aged 19; and Richard, 15 Sept., 1700.

7. SAMUEL of N. L., son of Gabriel (2) m. Elizabeth Gibson, 5 Aug., 1687, and had Elizabeth, b. 7 May, 1690, m. William Rogers; William, 29 Feb., 1692; Gibson, 20 Apl., 1694; Samuel, 5 Mch., 1697; Peter, 9 May, 1699; Ebenezer, 6 July, 1703; and Lydia, 2 Aug., 1706.

8. JOSEPH of N. L., Lieut., son of Gabriel (2) m. Mary Stephens, 1st Dec., 1696, and had a dau., b. 12 Jan., 1697, d. next mo.; Mary, 4 Apl., 1699, m. a Way; Phebe, 24 Jan., 1701,

m. — Cranch, m. 2d, Stephen Prentice, m. 3d, — Edgerton; Hannah, b. ab. 1703; Sarah, 1 Jan., 1705; m. 1st, Samuel Jackson, next m. a Harris; Grace, 3 Feb., 1707, m. 9. WILLIAM of Salem, Mass., 1635; removed, 1636, with Roger Williams to settle Providence, R.
